US FIRM zTrace has developed a software agent to track down stolen computers.

Hidden on the hard drive, the software is activated when a stolen PC or laptop is connected to the Internet.

Its location can then be given to the rightful owner or sent to the firm's team of ex-police officers and detectives.

The system can be used to stop dishonest employees 'borrowing' a laptop.

zTrace is believed to be in the process of negotiating to bring its tracking system to Europe.
